Natural Causes.

Coroner Meredith yesterday held an inquest over the remains of Thomas F. Head, who was 80 years of age and a native of Vermont.
 J. P. Swanvig testified: I have known the deceased for about nine years. I do not think he is a married man. He has drunk nothing since I have known him. I know nothing of having a cold and of not feeling well. I last saw him alive last evening. The verdict was death from natural causes.

Everybody Happy.

The reservoir on the Electric Homestead tract is all flushed at last, and, as the pipes have been laid for some time, the people living on that tract will soon have all the water they can use. It is stated that the reason of the long delay is that the parties from whom the new engine to be used in the engine house of the electric street railway was ordered failed in delivering the new 200-horse-power engine at the time agreed upon, and the engine now in use in the engine-house could not be taken out to the end of the road until the new one arrived. The big new engine is now on the ground and will be set in a few days, and then the old engine will be used to pump water and the new one used to make the current for the railway.

"Whoee Man Hoss."

The Chinese driver of a laundry wagon created some amusement on Spring street last night by showing the paces of a new horse and the graces of the animal's new set of harness. Unluckily for John, the horse was used to a more determined or careful driver, and presently took the bit in his teeth and executed a small runaway, to the great terror of his driver, whose hat flew off, and whose queue stood out at right angles with his head. The animal was caught before any damage was done, and it was some time before his driver so recovered his wits as to be able to take proper care of his charge.

A Brave Boy.

A gentleman paying a visit to the residents of a house on South Main street, near Twelfth street, yesterday afternoon, hitched his team to a twelve-pound weight and went into the house expecting to find them again all right when he came out. In the meantime Freddie Williams, a boy who lives on Figueroa street, frightened the team by throwing his paper kite to blow in their faces, and the team was so scared that they ran away, pulling the weight after them. The boy, fearful of the consequences of his carelessness, caught at the strap to which the weight was attached, and had it not been for the presence of mind of the driver of one of the Agricultural Park and Main street cars, who jumped from his car and stopped the runaway, it is likely the little fellow would have met with serious damage. As it was he got off with a few bruises, and had grit enough to lead the team back to where it started from, and tie the animals to a telegraph pole for greater safety.

Out Yachting.

The following party left San Pedro on the yacht Aggie last Saturday for San Diego: Col. J. J. Ayers of the Herald, Capt. Dan McFarland, Mr. Goodman of the Express, Judge Silent, N. R. Vail, Capt. W. H. Bon-sall, Prof. W. M. Friesner, L. T. Garney, and Charles McFarland. The object of the trip was business and pleasure combined. The proprietors of Redondo Beach being about to erect a large hotel at that place, were anxious to inspect the hotel at Coronado Beach before completing their plans. On the return trip, Mr. Ingle of Coronado Beach, accompanied the party to Redondo Beach, with a view to giving an opinion as to the proper site for the hotel, to be similar to that at Coronado Beach and second to none on the coast. Mr. Garney returned Monday by rail and reports a delightful trip.

Pickwick Dramatic Club.

At a regular meeting of the Pickwick Dramatic Club, which was held at Ellis's drug store last evening, the following officers were elected: R. W. Ellis, Jr., president; Will Scofield, vice-president; Edward A. Solomon, secretary; W. C. Wolfe, treasurer; William Clark, stage manager. With a few exceptions, the constitution and bylaws were accepted, and the committee was thanked and discharged. The next regular meeting will be held next Tuesday evening, when the club expects to have its own quarters and a first-class play chosen.

The Highest Authority.

William Hammond Hall, the State Engineer, who has had years of experience in land and water in California, after a full examination of the Rancho E-31-3/4 on of San Fernando, reports to the owner of the property, the Porter Land and Water Company, as follows: "You have 10,000 to 11,000 acres, and perhaps more, of really first-rate valley lands for cultivation; with soils not to be surpassed for fertility and desirability by those of any section; lying very favorably for irrigation, and in a neighborhood whose climate is well-adapted to the best class of agricultural, horticultural and vineyard productions usual in this country." Mr. Hall has been employed by the company to devise a complete plan for the irrigation of the tract with the waters flowing from San Fernando, Sycamore and Pacoima creeks, and from the immense cienegas located upon the ranch, and the public may expect the finest water system in California upon this property. Train Robbed on the Texas and Pacific.

Four Masked Desperados Do the Job in Professional Style.

The Express Safe and Registered Mail Bag Cleaned Out.

The Outlaws Quickly Secure $50,000 and Depart—The Passengers Not Satisfied—A High-Traffic Bridge Near Benbrook the Scene of the Robbery.

By Telegram to The Times.
FOUR WORTH (Tex.), Sept. 30.—[By the Associated Press.] Two masked men, with drawn revolvers, mounted the cab of the Texas and Pacific express train tonight, as it pulled out of Benbrook, a small station west of here. The engineer was ordered to run the train a few miles from Benbrook. It was stopped just over a high trestle. Here two other masked men boarded the train. The fireman and engineer were then placed under guard. A dozen

SHOTS WERE FIRED
into the express car and the door was finally opened by Pacific Express Messenger Maloney. One of the robbers entered and cleaned out the safe and then went into the mail car. Messenger Griffith, who was on duty, opened no resistance. Every registered letter in the car was secured by the robbers. The work was done in ten minutes and the engineer was ordered to pull out. The train was the through express from San Francisco. The booty taken was valued at $50,000. There is no trace of the robbers.

LEON BALDWIN'S MURDER.

Bayard's Attention Called to the Case by Congressman Morrow.
SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 30.—[By the Associated Press.] Congressman W. W. Morrow has forwarded to Secretary Bayard a detailed statement of the murder of Leon Baldwin, the mining superintendent who was killed recently by Mexican bandits. Morrow also sends the following letter:

"It appears that Leon Baldwin, of this city, while engaged in peaceful and legitimate occupation in the State of Durango, Republic of Mexico, was most foully murdered by a band of Mexicans, for no other crime than that he was an American. These outrages on American citizens are increasing in frequency and becoming more inhuman and barbarous in character. I respectfully suggest that our Government take decided and effective measures to secure protection for the lives and property of American citizens in Mexico. I commend the case to the State Department as one that should receive careful attention and demand redress from the Mexican Government. The assassination of Mr. Baldwin has left his widow and child without support. Their unfortunate condition appeals very strongly to the sympathies of our people, and I am sure I am representing the wishes of all good citizens when I present this case to you, with the request that you receive the immediate and earnest attention of our Government."

INCREASING COMMERCE.

Steamers to Fly More Frequently on the Southern Line.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 30.—[By the Associated Press.] Goodall, Perkins & Co. will soon contract with Neale & Levy, proprietors of the Pennsylvania Iron Works, at Philadelphia, for the construction of a steel vessel to register 1000 tons. She is to be designed for speed, as well as carrying freight, and ample cabin accommodations will be provided for 200 persons. The steamer will be completed in about eight months, and will cost between $175,000 and $200,000.

The old collier Unatilla, which is being changed into a passenger steamer, will be ready for service about November 1st, and will replace the Mex on the Pacific Southern line. The Mex will be added to the line between this city and San Diego and way ports, alternately with the Santa Rosa and Queen of the Pacific. This will enable the company to dispatch a steamer every three days instead of every four days. The new steamer will probably be assigned to this route so that a steamer will depart every other day.

HIS ACCOUNTS CORRECT.

A Prison Warden Refutes a Rumor That He Is Short.

SANTA FE (N. M.), Sept. 30.—[By the Associated Press.] Thomas P. Gable, warden of the New Mexico Penitentiary, publishes the following card: "The rumor of a shortage in my accounts as warden is false, as the following will show: "SANTA FE (N. M.), Sept. 30.—I have this day received from Thomas P. Gable all funds due from him as warden of the New Mexico Penitentiary. (Signed) H. C. BURNETT, Acting Warden. "I have examined the accounts of the New Mexico Penitentiary, and certify that the above is correct. (Signed) E. J. ROSS, Governor and Chairman of the Board of Managers of New Mexico Penitentiary."

NEW MEXICO.

Settlers to Be Reimbursed—The Navajos' Strength.

SANTA FE (N. M.), Sept. 30.—[By the Associated Press.] Col. B. G. Greenson, Tenth Cavalry, commanding the military district of New Mexico, today concluded his annual report to the War Department at Washington. The report is quite lengthy, and contains much valuable information. He recommends that fair compensation be allowed and paid without unnecessary delay, to settlers who were removed from the Jicarilla Indian reservation, in the San Juan county, for money actually expended by them on the lands in question. He says that the strength of the Navajos is underestimated, that they number nearly 20,000, and are steadily increasing in population, and are probably the best warriors on the continent.

WANTS DAMAGES.

A Railroad Company Suit for False Imprisonment.

ST. JOHNS, (Ariz.), Sept. 30.—[By the Associated Press.] The suit of Arthur McDonald against the Atlantic and Pacific Railroad Company for $25,000 for false imprisonment, was called before Judge Wright today. McDonald was arrested in January, 1888, for stealing coal from the railroad company at Holbrook, but there being no evidence against him he was discharged. His son, Don McDonald, pleaded guilty, however, on the same charge before the District Court, but sentence was deferred by Chief Justice Howard, then presiding. On petition of the defendant Judge Wright today ordered the case to be removed to Prescott, to come up at the November term of the Federal Court.

Want to Issue Bonds.

NEW YORK, Sept. 30.—Officers of the Northern Pacific Railroad are preparing a call for a meeting of preferred stockholders to consider a proposition to relieve the management from the restriction against issuing new bonds, which is one of the provisions of the plan under which the road was reorganized.

A Verdict Charging the Constables with Murder Expected.

The Dublin Mail Gets a Firm Grip on the Mexican Capital—Dillon Delivers a Defiant Speech—England's New Minister Involved—Foreign Notes.

By Telegram to The Times.

LONDON, Sept. 30.—[By Cable and Associated Press.] At today's hearing in the Mitchelstown inquiry, Constable Doran swore that he fired four times at the crowd, twice with buckshot and twice with ball. The first bullet he fired prostrated a man. Harrington, M.P., had quite a tilt with this witness, calling him a murderer and other names. Sgt. Rider deposed that he fired three charges of ball from a window of the barracks. He declined to say whether he murdered any one. He simply did his duty. Harrington, interposing, "Listen to me, you villain!" The witness replied warmly that he was "no villain," and asked the coroner's protection.

Harrington said that the witness had been sent there to bully him, and he was hardly able to restrain himself from kicking the witness then and there.

A spirited altercation ensued, the spectators taking the side of the witness. The inquiry finally had to be adjourned. It is certain that a verdict of murder will be rendered against certain policemen. DILLON STILL DEFYING.
LONDON, Sept. 30.—John Dillon presided at a great meeting held in Limerick Town Hall today under the auspices of the National League. The hall was crowded. Dillon made the speech of the day, and dwelt at length on the case of the editor O'Brien. Dillon said O'Brien would be condemned as a felon, but if he would ruin the property, "I would civilize him." The Government must not think it could crush the league by any such means as those resorted to in the prosecution of O'Brien. Each act of that kind would add but fresh courage and spirit to the people of Ireland in their struggle for home rule and independence. The United States of America, Dillon declared, was now at the peak of the great Irish home-rule movement.

A STEAMER'S MISAP.

LONDON, Sept. 30.—The Hamburg-American line steamer Gelert, from New York, September 28th, for Hamburg, lost two of her propeller-blades on Friday. Her mails and passengers for the Continent were landed at Plymouth. The steamer will proceed to Cherbourg.

A MONSTER IRONCLAD.

LONDON, Sept. 30.—The Trafalgar, the largest ironclad ever constructed, was successfully launched today at Portsmouth. The vessel is of 11,940 tons and of 13,000 horse power. She is armed with four of sixty-seven tons and eight of forty tons. Her side armor is twenty inches thick.

COMPROMISE URGED.

LONDON, Sept. 30.—Baron Monck, Liberal, one of the Lord Justices of Ireland, and the Fourth Lord Commissioner, advises the landlords of Ireland to follow Archbishop Walsh's advice and hold conferences with a view of reaching better relations on questions of rent.

MORE MEXICAN DUELS.

CITY OF MEXICO, Sept. 30.—Much public interest is felt in the duel announced for tomorrow between Gen. Tannin and Gen. Pradito, governor of the Palace. A duel between two well-known journalists is also on the tapis.

FIRED FROM CHOLERA.

ROME, Sept. 30.—Fifty thousand inhabitants of Messina have fled from that city on the account of cholera.

CARDINAL MANNING.

One of the Ten Great Men of the World.

Cardinal Manning stands in the front rank of the world's great men. He is very tall, being over six feet in height, and very slender. Advancing age has rounded slightly his shoulders. He wore the long black cassock of the priest. It was trimmed with red. As he walked crimson stockings showed above his low-cut shoes from under his black flowing skirt. Walking with a long stride to the hard leather high-backed chair near the table, the Cardinal motioned me to a chair near him and then turned. As he sat there he presented a most interesting and picturesque appearance. The posture and positive character of this distinguished prelate of the Roman Catholic Church would have made a picture painted as he sat in the soft light from the window. His dark red cardinal's cap was brought forward and slightly over one ear, giving him a rather dashing appearance. His aristocratic features and long, white hands indicated a man of the highest intellectual and aristocratic type. His face is particularly gentle and kindly in its expression. His forehead is broad and high. His eyes are dark gray, well sunken under projecting eyebrows. His nose is a fierce, aristocratic Roman. His face is quite angular and is, of course, smooth-shaven. His cheekbones are high, with a large depression in the hollow of the chin. His mouth is thin-lipped and straight. His chin is pointed, projecting and most positive in its lines. His neck is long, and was half hidden by a pink linen collar standing up squarely around his neck and circled by a black tie over which was twisted a long, gold chain. He twisted in his hands a pair of steel-bowed eye-glasses, as he talked about the policy of the Church, and its relations to the labor question. He spoke with the greatest deliberation, enunciating with the greatest distinctness every word. His voice was at no time raised above the ordinary tone. It was the easy, gracious talk of a man of the world of the highest class. There was a gentleness and simplicity of bearing in his manner which were most prepossessing. He was very much interested in the United States, and in the problems which are yet to be solved there. He believes fully in the daylight of publicity, and is in sympathy with the public men who pursue their ends through secret and devious ways. He argues that what is kept hidden is not good, and that, therefore, however good objects sought to be accomplished by secret societies may be, they are more than counterbalanced by the evil of the system of secrecy.

Excited Fisherman to Summer-hotel.

There isn't a bit of fishing around here. Every brook has signs warning people off. What do you mean by luring anglers here with the promise of fine fishing? Hotel man: I didn't say anything about fine fishing. If you read my advertisement carefully you will see that what I said was: "Fishing unapproachable." [Burlington Free Press.]

The Weather.

PHOENIX, ARIZONA.

Parties desiring bargains in the rich fruit-growing lands of the great

Salt River Valley

Are invited to correspond with us. The investments of many of the most successful Southern California land speculators, viticulturists and pomologists near

PHOENIX

ARE A SURE GUARANTEE OF PROFIT. We refer, by permission, to ex-Mayor J. E. Toberman, Los Angeles, who has been in the Salt River Valley for many years, and who is found to be more becoming than velvet on account of its thick, rich pile, and black plush is preferred to brown because the latter is considered an imitation of seal fur. These are, however, many handsome brown plush wraps in the Havana, tobacco and golden shades, instead of the darker seal brown. Gray plush in steel shades, Gobelin blue, and emerald green plushes are also made up in wraps; the red plush cloaks are darker than the ruby shades used last year. These short cloaks are scarcely larger than the scarf mantles of the summer, sometimes being simply round capes at the back and sides, with long, slender fronts added under the cape and quite separate, so that the arms pass out between the cape and the long fronts. Others have the middle forms of the back lengthened over the shoulders, with the sides sewed in next these back forms, and extended as small square sleeves or as a sling cape, while the fronts are pointed like a long jacket, or else they are in mantilla shape. All such garments have the loose straight fronts that are so generally becoming, with the short back adjusted by a belt or ribbon underneath tied around the waist. To make plush cloaks warm enough they have a luxurious soft thick lining of eider-down quilted in satin; the satin may be black, changeable, or striped, but quiet dark linings are preferred. The trimmings are all-over embroideries of beads done on the garment, or of silk embroidery in thick close stitches like cords, or in open designs like lace. Corded net in fanciful meshes sometimes covers the sides and sleeves, giving the effect of a garment combined of two materials. Pointed, vokes of passementerie are partly of fine beads and partly of cords, and the V-shaped trimmings of passementerie so long in use are retained because these tapering lines give the slender, long-waisted appearance now in vogue. Stripes made of jetted gimps are also fashionable trimmings, some being in fine narrow lines and others two or three inches wide in lozenge patterns, in blocks, in wheels, or in Greek squares. Iridescent beads are used in gimps and in fringes, especially on brown wraps, but jet trimmings with some tinsel intermixed are used for almost all other colors of plush or velvet. The steel and silver bead embroideries are very effective on gray, black, and blue wraps. Fringes of beads in long, slender strands remain in favor, and are placed at the top of the garment, not edging it, as long pointed collars, V's, and yoke shapes, also as epaulettes dropping from the shoulders low on the sides. Chenille fringes are also seen again, in sleek long strands finished with jet tips, and with very slight heading. Pointed V-shaped and tricornered pieces of jet passementerie are used as single ornaments, or in rows, or as headings for fringes. New short cloaks for those wearing mourning are of dull Ottoman silk with cord embroidery done on the garment, bordered with a new fluffy trimming made of fine narrow silk braid curled very closely. These wraps are made with long straight front, short adjusted back, and small square sleeves beginning in the side-form seams, yet cut up so far that they do not bind the arms closely. For very light mourning are dark gray plush wraps, with black netted cord trimming covering the PLUSH, VELVET AND SILK FALL DRESSES WITH WRAPS.

Long Cloth Cloaks—Short and Long Plush Cloaks—The Braided Cloth Mantles—Black Silk Dresses—Notes for the Ladies.

[Harper's Bazar.]

French modistes complete autumn dresses for the street by adding a small mantle of the materials of the dress, giving variety to the wardrobe where street suits usually consist of a tailor gown and jacket. These suits are combinations of two materials, such as cloth with plush, or else faille Francaise with velvet. The heavy plush or velvet forms the lower skirt, and may be either plain, plaid or striped; it is hung quite full and plain on the foundation skirt, and later in the season may be bordered with fur. The cloth forms a long drapery, showing the plush or velvet only at the foot or up one side, and sometimes falls in cascade folds down the back, being faced with velvet, and showing the lower skirt. Its whole length in thick pleats, or full shirring, or else the French gathers that show the edges of pleats crowded together.

The basque of the cloth has Directorate revers of plush, with a pleated vest, and plush collar and cuffs. The short wrap is of the cloth, with adjusted back like a basque, and sling sleeves that cover the sides and almost meet in front over a waistcoat of plush, which is inserted in the armholes, and fits the figure like a jacket, giving the warmth that sling-sleeve wraps as formerly made failed to give. The fronts of the cloth are bordered with a plaited passementerie passes around below the collar and drops in a V behind with tasseled ends. This suit is very handsome in Gobelin blue cloth and plush, or in brown cloth with many tiny tufts done by hand in the cloth instead of machine stitching. The passementerie is of brown cord plaited with dull gold cord. Braided cloth mantles, in small visits shapes, are made with dresses that are entirely of cloth and richly braided. Blue and green cloths are braided with black, but those of the tobacco browns are usually trimmed with braid of the same shades, or else with a mixture of tinsel. The fronts of these wraps are straight and long, the back short and adjusted to the figure like a jacket, and the sides have small square sleeves; the braiding may be in many straight, waved, or curled rows of fine soutache sewed on the cloth, or else it may be of very elaborate design, fashioned like passementerie, and adjusted to the garment afterward; this trimming may simulate a vest, or else cover the entire sides of the garment and its square sleeves. If a border is added, it is of fur, or of the fluffy silk or curled braid ruches that imitate fur.

Short cloaks will be worn by young women, as they give warmth to the body, where most needed, and at the same time leave the skirts of handsome gowns uncovered. Black cloaks will be worn in English fashion with dresses of any color. Plush will be the favorite fabric for rich wraps, as it is found to be more becoming than velvet on account of its thick, rich pile, and black plush is preferred to brown because the latter is considered an imitation of seal fur. These are, however, many handsome brown plush wraps in the Havana, tobacco and golden shades, instead of the darker seal brown. Gray plush in steel shades, Gobelin blue, and emerald green plushes are also made up in wraps; the red plush cloaks are darker than the ruby shades used last year. These short cloaks are scarcely larger than the scarf mantles of the summer, sometimes being simply round capes at the back and sides, with long, slender fronts added under the cape and quite separate, so that the arms pass out between the cape and the long fronts. Others have the middle forms of the back lengthened over the shoulders, with the sides sewed in next these back forms, and extended as small square sleeves or as a sling cape, while the fronts are pointed like a long jacket, or else they are in mantilla shape. All such garments have the loose straight fronts that are so generally becoming, with the short back adjusted by a belt or ribbon underneath tied around the waist. To make plush cloaks warm enough they have a luxurious soft thick lining of eider-down quilted in satin; the satin may be black, changeable, or striped, but quiet dark linings are preferred. The trimmings are all-over embroideries of beads done on the garment, or of silk embroidery in thick close stitches like cords, or in open designs like lace. Corded net in fanciful meshes sometimes covers the sides and sleeves, giving the effect of a garment combined of two materials. Pointed, vokes of passementerie are partly of fine beads and partly of cords, and the V-shaped trimmings of passementerie so long in use are retained because these tapering lines give the slender, long-waisted appearance now in vogue. Stripes made of jetted gimps are also fashionable trimmings, some being in fine narrow lines and others two or three inches wide in lozenge patterns, in blocks, in wheels, or in Greek squares. Iridescent beads are used in gimps and in fringes, especially on brown wraps, but jet trimmings with some tinsel intermixed are used for almost all other colors of plush or velvet. The steel and silver bead embroideries are very effective on gray, black, and blue wraps. Fringes of beads in long, slender strands remain in favor, and are placed at the top of the garment, not edging it, as long pointed collars, V's, and yoke shapes, also as epaulettes dropping from the shoulders low on the sides. Chenille fringes are also seen again, in sleek long strands finished with jet tips, and with very slight heading. Pointed V-shaped and tricornered pieces of jet passementerie are used as single ornaments, or in rows, or as headings for fringes. New short cloaks for those wearing mourning are of dull Ottoman silk with cord embroidery done on the garment, bordered with a new fluffy trimming made of fine narrow silk braid curled very closely. These wraps are made with long straight front, short adjusted back, and small square sleeves beginning in the side-form seams, yet cut up so far that they do not bind the arms closely. For very light mourning are dark gray plush wraps, with black netted cord trimming covering the sides and sleeves, and bordered with black fox fur.

Long plush cloaks are in pelisse or redingote shape, open up the back and side seams to the hips, straight down the front, and with bell-shaped sleeves that curve wider below the elbows. The trimming is head embroidery done on the garment down the fronts, widening toward the foot; in robe design, and in V's or round collars on the closely-fitted waist. Fur trimmings are placed up the fronts and open seams, and are used as a high collar and cuffs, but are seldom placed around the foot as a border. Black fox, bear and beaver furs are the trimmings. Eight drab and golden-brown plush pelisses are shown for evening and carriage cloaks, trimmed with iridescent bead embroidery and fringe, and edged with fur, and sometimes lined throughout with the crinkled white Chinese lambskin.

Long cloaks are full garments in raglan shape—that is, with square sleeves beginning in the side forms—else they are like the Irish peasant cloaks, gathered to the collar or yoke and falling straight to the ground without sleeves; a waistcoat front is added to these cloaks for warmth, and the long outer fronts are sometimes doubled from the foot upward as sling-sleeve capes are. Spider-web designs are seen on the new cloaks, also rough astrakhan stripes, diagonal stripes, sunken oval and snail-shaped figures, and odd hieroglyphics, in lighter shades than that of the surface of the cloth, and also in contrasting colors. The striped rough cloths are very effective, as they give the appearance of great comfort and warmth, and may be had in dressy garments as well as in plain ulsters.

Two colors, or else velvet stripes alternating with faille stripes of another color, are used for the bodice and skirts of dresses that have faille sleeves and drapery. Thus a red and green dress has red velvet half-inch stripes alternating with green faille stripes, forming a basque that has pleated fronts, the pleats wide on the shoulders, tapering to a point at the waist line, and the V space filled with red moire ribbon; the high collar is of the striped velvet, and the coat sleeves of faille have striped velvet cuffs. The neck and sleeves have white feathered watered ribbon basted inside, with a small square bow of the same coming outside at the throat. Black striped velvet and faille dresses are being made in similar combinations, also plain black velvet polonaises with one short side and the opposite in a long panel, with the lower skirt of black faille Francaise trimmed with fringe.

Lace and jet passementerie are the trimmings for new dresses of black silk. The skirt is skirted with rows of jet passementerie down the front and sides, or else only on one side, while the other is pleated, or has lace arranged in cascades. Sometimes a jabot of wide lace edges a front drapery that comes from the left hip to the foot on the right side; below this are wide bands of solid jet alternating with broad pleats of the silk. Cord passementeries are also used on black silks, and are sometimes placed in points above a wide border of black velvet which trims the foot of the skirt all around. The silk draperies are very full and long, caught up on one side with a cord ornament, and very fully pleated in the back, the pleats deeply lapped to extend to the end, and falling over in soft points on the tournure. Soft draperies from the shoulder to the waist cross diagonally the front of the basque, or else there are Directorate revers of velvet with two cascades of lace down the middle. A girde, collar and cuffs of passementerie of jet, or else merely of silk cords, are the garniture for completing black faille dresses. The favorite fashion of a black velvet basque with faille skirts will be worn again with either plain faille or basket-striped or else velvet-striped faille.

A VEGETABLE RARA AVIS.

A Strange and Prolific Food Plant From Oceanside.

[San Diego Union.]

J. Begg, of Oceanside, has contributed a very curious and interesting plant to the St. Louis exhibit. Since being brought to this country, a little over a year ago, it has been called the melon shrub. Its botanical name is neopolia tuberosum. It is a vine much resembling the tomato vine. Its leaves and other peculiarities prove, however, that it belongs to the potato family. The melon shrub is a native of Guatemala, Central America. About twelve months ago two plants were taken to Los Angeles, the first ever brought to this country. They thrived, and proved to be of very rapid growth. Mr. Begg obtained a plant and has since raised a number. From his experience with it, he is of the opinion that the shrub will grow perennially where there is no frost. In cold and frosty climates its cultivation would be a failure.

The plant, or vine, reaches a height of four or five feet, and must be supported like a tomato vine. The blossoms are purple in color and much resemble potato blossoms in form and appearance. The fruit is light green in color, and when ripe is about the shape and size of a large goose egg. It taste very much resembles a muskmelon, but is smoother and finer flavored. The seeds also resemble very small muskmelon seeds. The plants are constantly in blossom, and constantly in fruit. The specimen intended for the exhibition is only two feet high, and yet it has a great quantity of blossoms and no less than fifty specimens of the fruit in all stages of development.

The skin of the fruit is thin and hard, and preserves it for weeks after being ripe. This will allow of it being shipped East and even to Europe. From this fact, its cultivators believe it will be a valuable addition to California fruits. The melon plant grows in immense quantities wild on the table lands of Guatemala, and its fruit is there used as an important article of food. The specimen of the plant that will appear in the exhibit at St. Louis will undoubtedly attract much attention, as it is the first that has ever been sent East.

Between the acts. She (reproachfully): "Edward, you've been drinking." He: "Only a glass of milk, my dear." She: "But your breath smells horribly of whisky." He (with concern): "Is that so? The cow must have been fed on distillery slops." [Buffalo Express.]

EMMA WILLIAMS' DEATH

ONCE CHARGED WITH A TERRIBLE MURDER.

An Adventurous Woman's Varied Career—Love, Wealth, Passion, Poverty—A Reminiscence of Dr. Burdell's Murder.

(San Francisco Call.) Mrs. Emma Williams, whose death occurred in New York City last Tuesday, was Mrs. Cunningham, who, in 1857, was the principal defendant in the trial in that city for the killing of Dr. Harvey Burdell, a case which became one of the cause celebre of the Empire City.

Dr. Burdell, a wealthy dentist of New York; resided at 31 Bond street. He owned the house, but rented it to Mrs. Cunningham, who sublet him apartments, and in time became his housekeeper. The doctor was on the morning of the 31st of January, found dead on the floor of his room. He had received forty or fifty stabs. He had evidently made desperate efforts to defend his life against his assassins, as evidences of a terrible struggle were seen in the wrecked furniture, with slashes of blood on the walls and pools of crimson gore on the floor. The murderers left no clue by which to identify them, but strong suspicion fell on Mrs. Cunningham and John J. Eckel, a boarder in the house. Both were charged with complicity in the crime and put on trial for their lives. Some singular testimony was produced on the part of the defense during the trial. There was nothing but circumstantial evidence to offer on the part of the prosecution, and the intimate relation existing between Mrs. Cunningham and the deceased formed the strongest link in the chain. To break the force of this, it was claimed by the defense that what had never been known or suspected before—that Dr. Burdell and Mrs. Cunningham had been privately married. Rev. Dr. Snodgrass, a well-known clergyman, it was asserted, had performed the ceremony. The minister, when placed on the witness-stand, swore that he had married her to somebody; he could not positively describe the groom, but believed that Eckel, her co-defendant, was the man. The testimony on this point was the prosecution was not at all strong, and both the defendants were acquitted.

After her release Mrs. Cunningham brought suit in the Surrogate's Court to establish her claim to Dr. Burdell's estate as his widow, and pretended to be confined of a child, which she asserted was Dr. Burdell's. It was proven by Oakey Hall, prosecuting attorney, that this child had been smuggled to her in a basket from the almshouse. She was defeated in her suit, and soon afterward went to San Francisco.

Not long after Mrs. Cunningham's removal to San Francisco, she became acquainted with a wealthy mining man, the owner of extensive copper mines at Muleje, Lower California. He became smitten with the charms of the attractive widow, and subsequently married her. But dissipation and the soon broke the matrimonial alliance. She was again a widow. By the terms of the will of her last husband she became the exclusive owner of the property of which he was possessed, including the copper mines. They were supposed to be of great value, and she began to look around for a competent manager of her estate. Her choice now fell on a well-known mining superintendent, an Englishman of commanding presence, and the twin were soon united.

But her hopes of increased worldly wealth were doomed to disappointment. Water flooded the mines, and much of her means was exhausted in procuring expensive machinery, which failed to free the mines from the aqueous fluid.

Some three or four years ago she sold her mining property at Muleje, with several thousand acres of land, to a syndicate of Boston capitalists, and some $20,000 or $30,000 was to be paid down. But the tide had turned against her. When it seemed that she was about to be well rid of her costly elephant her plans were frustrated. The agent of the syndicate, who was sent to California with funds agreed upon, to make the transfers, appropriated the money and left his principals and Mrs. Williams to mourn. Since that time continued efforts have been made by the couple to dispose of the mine. One of the main objects of their removal to this city was to effect a sale, but success has not attended their endeavor. It is due to truth to say that the last marriage venture of the deceased was apparently the happiest, as Capt. and Mrs. Williams have always appeared to be a most devoted couple.

A Thrifty Summering.

There is a millionaire at Coney Island who perhaps lives less expensively than any other person on the island. He is known as a miser and reclusive who of late has been suffering from rheumatism. He first appeared at Coney Island two weeks ago, and rented an attic room in a down-town tenement on Baltic avenue, arranging for the use of the kitchen stove for cooking purposes. He subsisted chiefly on fish caught by himself from one of the docks on the thoroughfare or from one of the bridges which spans it. The expense of hiring a boat he could not be induced to afford. Every day when the sun is out he goes to the beach and takes a long sun bath in the sand, which has proven very beneficial. He seldom speaks to any one, not even to the members of the household in which he resides. He is a banker, in speaking of him, said: "I have known him for ten years, and I think his sole thought is how to make money. The poor men up in Philadelphia who are his tenants, breathing the heated air laden with ill-favored smells, are happier than he. Strange to say, he hates men of means, caused doubtless by envious feelings which creep through the portals of his brain."

The Bad Man From Beowave.

(Beno Gazette.)

An individual who had evidently been indulging freely in Carson mud-head pushed in a hayfield, walked deliberately to the "buckaroo" and without a word planted his immense fist square on the latter's nose, causing the claret to flow copiously, and bringing into full view of the recipient seven million stars and two or three comets. As soon as he collected his scattered senses, the bruiser by birth made his way to the door, and the last seen of him was headed in the direction of New York.

ROYALTY'S MINIONS.

THE ROYAL IRISH CONSTABULARY—APPEARANCE, ETC.

A Well-Armed Body of Mercenaries—Origin, Numerical Strength and Form of Organization—Finely Uniformed, Well-Drilled and Armed.

(Garden City Sentinel.)

The people of this country, in reading of the troubles of Ireland, and the connection of the police force therewith, have little or no idea of the nature of the Royal Irish constabulary. To obtain an idea what the Irish police force is like you must banish from your mind all preconceived notions of what is usually understood by police, and replace them with a well drilled, well armed military force, and you may have some slight notion of what the force is like.

The Royal Irish constabulary was organized in 1825, when they were poorly paid, worse managed and more heartily despised than any other body of men on earth. Year by year they steadily increased in efficiency and favor until the Young Ireland rebellion in 1848, in the suppression of which they played a prominent part, and still later in the Fenian rebellion of 1867 they gained for themselves fresh laurels.

At the present time the force consists of 12,000 men and about 300 officers, all under the command of an inspector-general, who has a deputy, and then come four assistant inspectors-general, who exercise from Dublin Castle complete control over the force throughout the country, through the country officers, known as county and district inspectors. The county inspector is in charge of a county, having under him from four to ten officers and from 200 to 700 or 800 men. The district inspector has a district or portion of the country under him, for the peace of which he is absolutely responsible. The districts vary in size from ten to thirty, and sometimes forty square miles, and the number of men in each from 50 to 200. Next in authority to the district inspector is the head constable, then the sergeant, acting-sergeant, and, finally, constables.

To procure the appointment of district inspector one must first get a nomination from the chief secretary for Ireland to compete with several others for a vacancy. The examination is conducted by the civil service commission. The successful candidates are sent to the depot as cadets for instruction in drill, musketry, equitation, finance and police duties, and after about six months are sent out to take charge of districts. The constables are appointed on passing a simple literary examination and being recommended by the district inspector. They also spend about six months in the depot, learning drill, police duties, etc., and doing guard, picket, patrol and similar duty.

Their dress consists of a spiked helmet, a dark blue tunic and breeches, and their arms are a short snidee, sword bayonet and a baton; the ammunition used is ball, cartridge and buckshot. The age for admission as officers is from 19 to 25, and for men from 17 to 27. The uniform of the officers consists of a black cloth tunic, with pouch belt, a patrol jacket and a shell jacket, helmet and forage, and army regulation sword. The relation ranks of the various grades are—inspector general, general, deputy lieutenant general, assistants, majors general, county inspectors, colonels, and district inspectors, majors, captains and lieutenants, according to class.

The pay and allowance of officers varies from $1250 a year to $7500, and of men from $275 to $520, with sundry allowances. In large towns their duties are like those of any other police force, and in country districts their occupation is principally patrolling and protecting. In cases of evictions they must protect the care-taker of the premises, and perform the same duties for bailiffs, agents and obnoxious landlords, in some instances the presence of 100 being required for such purpose. In appearance the police are a fine looking body of men. The minimum height is five feet eight inches, but the average stature is five feet eleven inches. They all live in barracks, are nearly all single men, and serve from twenty-five to thirty-five years. After thirty years' service they can retire on full pay.

Their loyalty has been tested on several occasions, but they have always been found true to the crown. Any person intimately acquainted with Ireland and the feeling of the people therein knows well what the result would be were such a splendid, well-drilled and well-disciplined armed force to turn against the constituted authorities.

The Title Is Absolutely Perfect. RAILROAD FACILITIES are good and will soon be better. Deposits of the two great OVERLAND LINES are near. Surveys have been made through the heart of the tract by the Pomona and Ontario and Southern Pacific companies, and a railroad will soon be built connecting directly with two competing overland lines, insuring LOW FARES AND FREIGHTS to all inland and seaboard cities in the United States.

The Town of Chino Is eligibly located in the center of the tract, with large lots, broad streets, alleys and reservations for SPACIOUS PARKS. It will have steam and motor roads and artesian water. It is certain to be VALUABLE BOOK!

OUR FAMILY PHYSICIAN!

GIVEN AWAY!

To all Subscribers of the WEEKLY MIRROR!

The price of the WEEKLY MIRROR is $2.00 a year. This book sells for $3.00 in the market. We will furnish both for $2.00. If the book is to be sent out of this office, 20 cents must accompany order to pay postage.

THE BEST PREMIUM OFFERED

By any Paper in the United States.

THE MOST PRACTICAL! THE MOST RELIABLE

Everybody should have a copy of our "FAMILY PHYSICIAN."

This book contains 544 pages; is eight and one-half inches long, six inches wide and two inches thick. It is printed on extra heavy paper and is handsomely bound, with embossed cover and gilt-lettered back.

IT IS DIFFERENT FROM ALL OTHER WORKS OF THE KIND EVER PUBLISHED. FIRST—It teaches those who have it how to tell what the matter is when some one gets sick. All similar books tell what to do—if you know what the disease is. THIS BOOK TELLS YOU HOW TO RECOGNIZE THE DISEASE, and then what to do for it. No other book published does this.

SECOND—When a person is really attacked by a dangerous disease, it enables you to know the fact, and in such cases its advice is, "Send for a competent physician at once." In all ordinary cases, such as can be cured without a doctor (and most of the ailments in a family are of this kind, if only you could recognize them), it gives full directions for treatment. The point is, that it teaches you the difference between a dangerous and a trifling disease, and tells you when it is necessary and when it is not necessary to call a physician. No other book published does this.

THIRD—It gives separately, and for each disease, the methods used by each of the different "schools of medicine," and in all cases the prescriptions are made by the most eminent men in their respective mode of practice. This makes the work specially suited to the needs of every family, no matter what school of medicine they prefer—the Allopathic, Homeopathic, Hydropathic, Eclectic or Herbal. NO OTHER BOOK PUBLISHED DOES THIS.

WE WILL SHOW YOU HOW IT DOES THIS

If you will call and see us.

Please read these indorsements of distinguished physicians which were sent to the publishers of this grand work:

Having examined the advance sheets of the work entitled "Our Family Physician," I can say that I find it accurate in its descriptions of diseases and reliable in its therapeutic department.

Professor of theory and practice, Hahnemann Medical College.

I hereby certify that I have examined a work entitled "Our Family Physician," and find it to be correct in its diagnosis, and, in my opinion, worthy of the confidence of the public.

I have examined the advance sheets of "Our Family Physician." It gives me pleasure to recommend the work as correct in its mode of treatment of diseases, and it deserves wide circulation.

After examining the publication "Our Family Physician," I can fully indorse the opinions expressed of its merits by the above gentlemen.

The book contains a valuable chapter of symptoms, which will aid wonderfully in diagnosing diseases, and the proper remedies are given for Allopathic, Homeopathic, Eclectic, Hydropathic and Herbal.

Every family should have a guide to health to assist the family doctor. not intended to take the place of the doctor in every instance, but to help you do everything possible in his absence.

—TO OUR OLD SUBSCRIBERS—

It is customary with newspapers to give premiums to new subscribers only; but the publishers of the MIRROR mean to reverse this old rule; they intend to do as well, at least, by their old subscribers—those who have stood by the paper in years past, and paid their money for it "right straight along." We propose to show our appreciation of these friends in a substantial manner; and as the premium to be offered is expensive, and as our express object in offering it is to increase our list of subscribers, we will require every old subscriber who may renew his subscription, in order to receive the valuable premium, to bring in AT LEAST ONE NEW SUBSCRIBER, to whom the premium will be given, as well as to the old subscriber.
